Building High Ranking Boards

The Non-Executive Director Programme

TQUK Level 6 Certificate in Strategic Planning and Leadership (RQF)

Alongside our exclusive community, which is specifically for exiting military officers, we will equip you with the translation guide, resource and support to help you become a world-class Non-Executive Director.

Are you a senior officer thinking about your career post-service? If yes, have you considered a board appointment as a Non-Executive Director or Consultant?

There is no denying your military experience will have prepared you already for such a role, the challenge is learning how to transfer your existing skillset into this new environment. For example, you may have had experience in making critical decisions, leading complex projects and situations, communicating to all levels of the team, displaying empathy and having a strong EQ. It's these skills that could provide some clear focus and structure to many boardrooms including those in a commercial setting, a blue-chip company, or a not-for-profit, or charitable organisation.

All you need to make the transition are your innate skills plus a robust understanding of the business world and the types of opportunities that would be your perfect fit.

The Non-Executive Director Programme can jump start your new career as a Non-Executive Director (NED) across many industries.

You will start with our five-day insight programme which delivers all the information you will need in three structured modules, designed to launch your adventure as a NED, enabling you to make a valuable contribution in your new role.

The modules will cover:

The Role of the Non-Executive Director
[2 days]

Finance for the Non-Executive Director
[1.5 days]

Marketing & Strategy for the Non-Executive Director
[1.5 days]

Following the five-day programme, you will continue to be supported by the tutors if you wish, whilst having access to our Ambassadors (all exclusively ex-officers from across the services who have successfully transitioned into the commercial world) and Super NEDs (who are serial NEDs and provide support and guidance pre and post appointment).

You will also gain access to Boardroom Links and Board Observations, which are exclusive opportunities for you to sit and observe 'real-life' board meetings plus access to new and under the radar NED appointments.

Programme Learner Outcomes

The Role of The Non-Executive Director

The role of the Non-Executive Director is becoming more and more relevant in a business world that must not only be ready, willing, and able to react with speed and efficiency, but one that needs to be constantly attuned to the ever-changing risks attached to exemplary business performance.

In this module you will:

- Understand the role of the NED in the boardroom.
- Understand the risks and the rewards associated with the role.
- Understand the skills required to maintain your position as a NED.
- Understand the importance of an elevator speech and how to sell yourself in the NED market.
- Understand the different roles a NED may undertake.
- Understand how a board can help bring about constructive change to the organisation.
- Understand the legal position of a NED and how to build a risk management process.
- Learn how to deal with challenging situations in a NED position.
- Understand how to identify initial success factors at the start of your NED journey.

Finance for the Non-Executive Director

Whilst as a NED you are not expected to be a financial genius, all directors including NEDs must have a substantial understanding of finance (including NEDs in a profit or a not-for-profit organisation). Though you won't be expected to create the principle financial documents, you must be able to read and understand them.

In this module you will:

- Understand how to interpret key financial statements.
- Know how to use financial terminology, both appropriately and correctly.
- Understand what affects and what doesn't affect cash flow.
- Understand the generic meaning of ratios and how they are applied.
- Understand how perceived and actual performance can be amended legitimately.
- Understand how a budget is built.

Marketing and Strategy for the Non-Executive Director

The role of the NED includes, amongst other activities, challenging the company strategy and marketing plan. It also includes bringing new ideas into the melee for debate and discussion. Whilst there is rarely a right or a wrong approach to such matters, it is critical to understand the approaches to these key board tasks.

In this module you will:

- Understand how to constructively challenge the current strategy and marketing positioning of an organisation.
- Understand how to ensure efforts are focused to maximise the return on the investment in marketing and strategic goals.
- Understand the importance of incorporating market feedback into marketing plans to gain a competitive advantage.
- Understand communication channels that advance strategy.
- Understand how to manage strengths and weaknesses in business.
- Understand the main components of strategic thinking and risk management.
- Understand strategic models.

“A really excellent way of equipping potential NEDs from a military background with the wherewithal to find and tackle their first appointment with confidence.

- Nick Nottingham OBE, Former British Army Brigadier

Transferable Skills

Throughout your service, it is without a doubt that you will have accumulated many skills which are essential or seriously lacking in many boardrooms across the country.

Communication, problem solving and teamwork are all examples of transferable skills because they can be applied in any employed role, but it's the unique skillset of many senior officers which lend perfectly to roles within a boardroom setting.

During our five-day insight programme, we will share with you the translation guide as to how your responsibilities, knowledge, and skills could be transferred to a commercial setting, but for example, they may include:

Having diplomatic skills that enable you to navigate conflicts & challenging conversations

Knowing the true value of camaraderie & how to build on this

Understanding the balance between hard headedness & sensitivity

Having an independent mindset & being ready to challenge

Knowledge is power, but you empower your peers, not constrain

Expertise in structuring & implementing risk management

Provide motivation to have a will to succeed

The ability to deploy framework analysis skills

The ability to see the bigger picture & think outside the box
